Other News – CFA exam results

The international success of the CFA credential continues to grow, with over 135,000 candidates taking exams at the three levels over the summer.

Of the almost 29,000 candidates that sat the final Level III exam, 54% (almost 16,000) of them passed, and pending experience requirements, will become CFA charterholders over the next two months.

At least one of those is from Israel! We are waiting to hear about the success of others, and will report back in the next newsletter.

The June 2016 Level I, II and III exams were administered in 258 test centers in 197 cities (including Tel Aviv) across 91 countries worldwide.

The global reach and international recognition of the CFA charter is greater than ever – illustrated by the fact that in Mainland China, Level I candidate registrations reached a record high of 22,999, surpassing the number of registrations in the United States for the first time ever.
