Members in the news

Tel Aviv based CFA charterholder, Doron Kornblum, is the Chief Investment Officer at Saga Select Asset Management Ltd. Other than his professional investment career, he has just published a (French) fictional work:

All Others Things Being Equal

Original title: Toutes choses étant égales par ailleurs

If Daniel's life had been a stock, its graph would have been a crash.

Former trader in the City of London, Daniel lives alone in Tel Aviv, with no job, no car, and no prospects. His only possessions are a cruel overdraft on his bank account and his father's contempt.

Initiated in economic theory since boyhood, Daniel persists in being more receptive to women's curves than to the inflation ones.

In spite of the centuries that separate them, a friendship develops between Daniel, John Stuart Mill and Karl Marx, who do not hesitate to interfere in his sentimental life and to guide him in his decisions. Together, they try to find a girl spotted at the bookshop earlier in the afternoon. Daniel is convinced she is the solution to all his problems.
